Bush to Stay Active In Republican Party

New Haven, Conn. (UPI) — George Bush, former national GOP chairman and CIA director under Presidents Nixon and Ford, said he would remain active in the Republican Party, but has no immediate plans to seek public office. He said he was impressed by President Carter's desire to maintain American strength in the world. Bush also served as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, National Republican chairman, and ambassador to the People's Republic of China under President Nixon.
